

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Jim Jaillet was born in Gardner, Massachusetts on December 5, 1940 and, like a true Sagittarius he says he is "addicted to the life of a traveler. I never get tired of seeing new places. Variety is the spice of life!"

He built his first "RV" in the form of a converted International Panel Truck in 1962. Painted a beautiful metallic green with "The Weekend Wanderer" in a gold color, it was the first of many RVs he has owned over the years. With his RV's he has traveled all of the lower 48 United States. He lived on the east coast for his first 40 years of life and after "going to all the good places several times over", moved to the west coast for "new horizons". He has also RVed in the countries of Canada, Mexico, Belize, Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama.

He has been living on-the-road full-time since he retired in 1995 and he says he somewhat resembles that old Johnny Cash song "I've been everywhere, man!" He hopes to be the first 100-year-old RVer!
